New Estate blooms

THE Honeywood Estate in Fernvale typified by its well-manicured streetscapes, parks and homes, recently held its inaugural Garden competition, the top three gardens sharing in the $1,700 prize pool.

The estate is now home to over 200 residents and the high quality entries in the first Garden Competition will ensure it's place in the future.

"It's great to see residents taking such pride in their gardens and this competition will really help to harness a great community spirit." marketing agent, Colliers International Associate Director, Clinton Trezise said.

"It is tremendous that we are attracting so many new residents taking advantage of the lifestyle that the Somerset region has to offer." special guest judge, Somerset Mayor Greame Lehman enthused.

The winners of Honeywoods' Garden competition were Gary and Sandy Olsen in first place, Anthony Freemantle in second and Samantha Hutchinson in third.

Developers, Lateral Properties, want to thank the Honeywood community for their involvement and congratulate the winners.

This is the second major community event for Honeywood residents for the year following a team entry into the Honeywood sponsored Fernvale Rail Trail Fun Run in July and the second annual Honeywood Christmas Lights competition is two short months away.
